GENERAL ANNUAL REPORT.

INTRODUCTORY NOTE.

The arrangement of this Report follows in general that of the Report for the year ending 30th September, 1921.

It should be noted that as regards the Regular Army the Regimental strength only is included. Consequently the figures in the tables affecting the Regular Army do not include men serving on the Staff, and in sundry miscellaneous Establishments such as Military Detention Barracks, Schools of Instruction, etc., nor do they include the Permanent Staff of the Territorial Army.

Statistical tables for the Territorial Army are shown in Section II., Part XII.

By Command of the Army Council.

SECTION I.

ANNUAL REPORT ON RECRUITING FOR THE REGULAR ARMY FOR THE YEAR ENDING 30th SEPTEMBER, 1922.

1. Summary of Results.

The total number of enlistments and re-enlistments during the recruiting year from 2nd October, 1921, to 30th September, 1922, was 40,607. The results obtained in each Military Command of the United Kingdom, and also the yield of recruits for each 100,000 of male population, are shown in the following table :—

	Eastern Command.	* Irish Command. 2/10/21 to 4/2/22.	*Northern Ireland District. 5/2/22 to 30/9/22.	London Zone.	Northern Command.	Scottish Command.	Southern Command.	Western Command.	Channel Islands.	Total.
Male Population (Census, 1921 ; except Ireland, 1911)	3,483,102	2,192,048	602,539	2,141,505	4,987,674	2,348,403	2,983,371	4,513,889	41,264	22,691,256 2/10/21 to 4/2/22 21,101,747 5/2/22 to 30/9/22.
Recruits finally approved	5,653	766	486	6,293	9,181	4,438	6,003	7,662	64	40,546
Number of recruits approved for each 100,000 of male population	162	35	80	294	184	189	201	169	156	192

* Recruiting in Southern Ireland ceased 4th February, 1922.

In addition, 61 recruits were raised at the Headquarters of various units at home and abroad.

Of these recruits, 39,597 were enlisted for normal periods of service, the remaining 1,010 being for short periods of Colour Service.

Although the total intake during the year under review is the lowest since the war, the number of recruits enlisted for normal periods is larger than the corresponding number enlisted during the previous year and is far in excess of the numbers obtained during the years prior to the war.

The improved result, which reflects great credit on the Recruiting Staff, is attributed in no small measure to the new Recruiting Organization, the principles of which were explained in the report for the year ending 1st October, 1921.

Nearly all of the men enlisted for short periods of Colour Service were skilled tradesmen, and it is entirely owing to the difficulty experienced in obtaining this class of recruit that it has been necessary to continue to allow recruits to enlist for short periods of service without any Reserve obligation. In order, however, to reduce to a minimum the expense to the State consequent upon accepting men for terms other than the normal period of 12 years in Army service, the necessity for retaining these short periods as an avenue for enlistment has been reviewed continually, corps by corps and trade by trade, with the result that by the end of the year recruiting for short periods of Colour Service had been limited to the enlistment into one corps of skilled men of five trades only.

The adoption of the recommendation of the Committee on National Expenditure necessitated the imposition of a number of restrictions on recruiting which severely militated against the full exploitation of the recruiting market. The more important of these restrictions are referred to in a subsequent paragraph of this report.

2. Factors affecting recruiting.

(a) The situation in Ireland.—Consequent upon the signature of the "Articles of agreement for a treaty between Great Britain and Ireland," enlistments into all Irish Infantry Regiments were suspended on 15th December, 1921. Recruiting for the five regiments which were eventually disbanded (viz., The Royal Irish Regiment, The Connaught Rangers, The Leinster Regiment, The Royal Munster Fusiliers and the Royal Dublin Fusiliers) was never re-opened. Recruiting for the Royal Inniskilling Fusiliers and for the Royal Ulster Rifles was re-opened on the 20th February, 1922; and for the Royal Irish Fusiliers on the 22nd September, 1922, but owing to the reduction in establishment of the Royal Inniskilling Fusiliers and the Royal Irish Fusiliers, recruiting for these two regiments was restricted to the enlistment of a very few men only.

The establishment of the Irish Free State led to the closing of recruiting in Southern Ireland for all corps of the British Army on the 4th February, 1922, and to the abolition of the five recruiting zones which were affiliated to the five infantry regiments being disbanded and of the Armagh recruiting zone. At the same time the recruiting organization in Northern Ireland was modified so as to conform with the organization in Great Britain, and Northern Ireland was divided, for recruiting purposes, into two recruiting zones, viz.: The Belfast Recruiting Zone (which corresponded to the former Royal Ulster Rifles recruiting area) and the Omagh Recruiting Zone (which was composed of those portions of the former Royal Inniskilling Fusiliers and Royal Irish Fusiliers recruiting areas which were within the limits of Northern Ireland); to each of these zones a retired recruiting officer, with the necessary subordinate staff, was appointed.

(b) Reduction of the Army.—The reduction in the establishment (viz., to two battalions) of the five English infantry regiments (viz.: The Royal Fusiliers, the Worcestershire Regiment, the Middlesex Regiment, the King's Royal Rifle Corps and the Rifle Brigade), each of which were composed of four battalions, led to recruiting being suspended for these regiments on 27th February, 1922, a situation which remained unchanged right up to the end of the recruiting year. This reduction reacted in an unfavourable manner on recruiting for the Army, especially in the recruiting zones affiliated to the regiments concerned, as the reports of soldiers and others stationed at or near the depots of those regiments to the effect that recruiting was closed encouraged many to believe that recruiting for the Army, as a whole, had been suspended.

It was also necessary that special measures should be taken in order to carry out the reductions recommended by the Committee on National Expenditure. To effect this reduction it was necessary either to close recruiting for the Army or to discharge prematurely the necessary number of men who were already serving; as, however, any curtailment of recruiting is felt in subsequent years, it was decided, in March, 1922, to discharge at once, with compensation, all men who were serving on special short service engagements and who were due for discharge in the ordinary course on or before 31st March, 1923. The adoption of this course enabled normal recruiting to be carried out throughout the year, but owing to the fact that reduced numbers were required to complete the reduced establishment, especially in the Royal Artillery, a high standard was imposed upon all recruits for enlistment.

It was only natural that the premature discharge from the Army of large numbers of men and the fear of further reductions should have fostered a feeling of uncertainty and insecurity in the minds of those who were contemplating a career in the Regular Army, and this has no doubt dissuaded many from enlisting who might otherwise have done so.

3. Skilled Tradesmen.

Although considerable difficulty is still being experienced in obtaining the required numbers of skilled tradesmen, satisfactory progress has been made during the year, and it has been possible to demand a high standard of skill from all candidates for enlistment as tradesmen.

4. Quality of recruits enlisted.

The standard of those offering themselves for enlistment is gradually improving, and all recruits are required to undergo a very searching medical examination with the object of ensuring that men of poor physique are not accepted for enlistment in the Army.

During the period under review the physical standards have been under examination by a Committee with the two-fold purpose of ascertaining the suitability of the existing standards so that good material is not rejected and so that poor material is not accepted into the Army. The investigations which the Committee were carrying out had not been completed by the end of the recruiting year.

5. Army Reserve.

In view of the fact that very few enlistments for the normal period (i.e., 12 years in Army Service, a portion of which is served with the Colours and the remainder in the Army Reserve) were carried out during the period 1914-1918, the number of men automatically transferred to the reserve on expiration of their Colour Service annually is at present very small, with the result that the strength of the Army Reserve is not sufficient for the task which it is required to perform, viz., to enable mobilization to be carried out on emergency. With a view to increasing the Army Reserve, 10,000 men who served with the Colours during the war have been specially enlisted for a period of four years into Section " D " during the period under review.

In order to obtain the required number of reservists it was necessary to insert in the Press announcements inviting certain classes of ex-soldiers to enlist in Section " D " Army Reserve, and to fill in and forward to the Central London Recruiting Depot a coupon, requesting that detailed information regarding conditions of service might be sent to them. The response to the invitation was good (no less than 37,000 applications for enlistment being received), and the material has been satisfactory.

A further increase of the Army Reserve by an additional 10,000 has now been authorized.

6. Re-organization of Depots of Infantry of the Line.

In order to provide at depots of infantry of the line a more complete and adequate system of training than has hitherto been in force, experiments entailing certain modifications in recruiting procedure have been made in one Military Command.

Under the system obtaining hitherto, recruiting for each individual infantry regiment has been controlled by increasing or decreasing, as may be necessary, the number of recruiting zones in which recruits might be enlisted for that regiment and by raising or lowering the standards of height. Except in abnormal circumstances, recruiting for a regiment was never suspended, the extent to which it was open to receive recruits depending upon the number of recruits required. The result of this system was that recruits, throughout the whole year, were arriving at depots in twos and threes according to the extent to which the regiment was open to recruiting and according to the state of the recruiting market; unless recruiting for the regiment was suspended there was never any period during which no recruits were arriving at the depot.

One of the main features of the scheme for there-organization of depots is that recruits should arrive at depots in batches, instead of in driblets, in order that training squads may be formed in as short a time as possible.

The advantage to be gained from this system is that recruits will now arrive at their battalions in batches, completely trained in every respect to take their places in the ranks. This relieves Commanding Officers of the responsibility for recruit training, and does not in any way interfere with the training of the unit as was the case under the old system.

Under that system Commanding Officers found in many instances that recruits on arrival at their battalions were imperfectly trained, which necessitated a further course of recruit training being carried out with the unit.

In order to facilitate the rapid formation of training squads at depots, all the recruiting zones in each Military Command are formed into groups, the number of such groups being dependent on local conditions; and under the instructions issued by the G.O.C.-in-C. of the Commands, all the recruiting zones in each group concentrate their efforts on forming a training squad of 30 recruits at each depot in the group in turn, or as the requirements in recruits of each regiment may demand.

Recruits who are unable to prove a claim to enlistment in any particular regiment are now invited to enlist in the regiment for which a training squad is in process of formation at the time of their enlistment.

This scheme produced very satisfactory results in the Northern Command in which the experiment was made, and the general adoption of the scheme in all Military Commands has now been decided upon by the Army Council.

(a) Native Troops borrowed from India. From 1913 to 1919 these figures refer to units specially provided by India for duty in China, Straits Settlements and Mauritius; from 1914 to 1919 they therefore exclude Indian troops employed with expeditionary forces; from 1920, however, inclusive, all Indian troops employed under the War Office are included.

(b) The figures for these years include the Territorial Army. Prisoners of War are included, except those of the Territorial Army for the years 1915, 1916 and 1917.

(c) The figures for 1919 and 1920 include that portion of the old Territorial Army not disembodied; those for 1920 do not include the new Territorial Army as reconstituted in February, 1920.

(d) In previous years the Military Mounted Police are included under "Cavalry," and the Military Foot Police under "Infantry."

(e) Prior to 1920 the Signal service was part of the Royal Engineers.

* The figures for these years include the embodied Territorial Army.
 The figures include the small portion of the old Territorial Army not disembodied.
(a) Including 1,064 discharges for misconduct.
¶ In 1912–13, 8,118 men were allowed to convert their colour to reserve service on special terms.
† Native Troops borrowed from India. From 1913 to 1919 these figures refer to units specially provided by India for duty in China, Straits Settlements and Mauritius; from 1914 to 1919 they therefore exclude Indian Troops employed with expeditionary forces; from 1920, however, inclusive, all Indian Troops employed under the War Office are included.
Previous to 1918 Warrant Officers were not included.
The Army Reserve was called out on 8th April, 1921, and demobilized on 2nd June, 1921.

‡ For the causes of discharge see pages 14, 15 and 16.

* Under Army Order 1 of January, 1918, all serving warrant officers, non-commissioned officers and men who had completed 22 years' service on or after 4th August, 1914, and who had been retained in the Army under the Military Service Acts, or who had voluntarily continued in the Service, were permitted to elect to draw, with retrospective effect, the pension to which they would have been entitled had they been discharged on completing 22 years' service. Similarly, soldiers who subsequent to the issue of the Army Order completed 22 years' service during the war, were permitted to elect to draw a Service Pension upon the completion of 22 years' Service. The election once made, the soldier was not entitled, in any circumstances, to have the Service Pension subsequently increased; but, if disabled, he became eligible for a disability pension in addition.

† In these cases, the soldiers were eligible, by length of service, for Service Pensions from the Commissioners, having received Disability Pensions from the Ministry of Pensions.

The present figures relate to all ranks serving in the Army (exclusive of officers).
Courts-Martial on Indian Native Troops and Civilians are not included.
The punishments are classified according to the method introduced in 1908; if, for example, a man is "imprisoned" and "fined" the punishment is entered under both headings.
In the case of a soldier convicted of more than one offence these are entered under their appropriate headings, thus showing the total number of soldiers convicted of each offence.
The remissions and suspensions of sentences are only shown when noted on the Proceedings.

* The figures for the period from 4th August, 1914, to 30th September, 1919, relate to the mobilized British Army (including the Territorial Army) and also to Overseas Dominion Troops, coloured labour, &c. (exclusive of Officers). For the period before 4th August, 1914, the figures relate only to Non-Commissioned Officers and men on the regimental strength of the Regular Army.

‡ Regimental Courts-Martial are not included, the figures not being available; very few Regimental Courts-Martial, however, were held during the war period.

§ Regimental Courts-Martial are included; Regimental Courts-Martial, however, were abolished in the Army (Annual) Act, 1920, which came into force in the United Kingdom, Channel Islands, and the Isle of Man from 30th April, 1920, and elsewhere from 31st July, 1920.

The remissions and suspensions of sentences are only shown when noted on the proceedings.

In the case of a soldier convicted of more than one offence, these are entered under their appropriate headings, thus showing the total number of soldiers convicted of each offence. The punishments are classified according to the method introduced in 1908; if, for example, a man is "imprisoned" and "fined," the punishment is entered under both headings.

NOTE AS TO THE VARIOUS SECTIONS

Section A consists of men who undertake a liability to be called out in stated circumstances without the general Reserve being mobilized; the undertaking is for the period required to complete one year from the date of their first transfer to the Reserve, and in certain circumstances for a further year. It was established by Royal Warrant of 8th October, 1898 (Army Order 142 of 1898), but after the war of 1914–1918 it was not revived.

Section B is the ordinary Reserve, and consists of men completing, in the Reserve, the term of their original engagement. It now includes Section C, in which men who had converted a period of Colour service into Reserve service used to serve until the time when their correct date of transfer to the Reserve arrived, when they passed into Section B.

Normally, Section D consists of men who, having completed the term of their original engagement (12 years), either with the Colours or in the Reserve, or having been discharged after 12 years' service, provided that not more than 15 years have elapsed since the date of first attestation (Army Order 212 of 1913), re-engage (or re-enlist) for a further period of four years in the Reserve. Men of certain trades are allowed to re-engage for further periods of four years in Section D, or, if they are within four years of attaining age 50, till the attainment of that age. To swell the Reserves, however, ex-soldiers were specially re-enlisted in Section D to the extent of 613 in 1920, 7,910 in 1921, and 10,819 in 1922.

OF THE ARMY RESERVE.

Class P consisted of men fit for service in a medical category not lower than C.III, whose services were deemed to be temporarily of greater value to the country in civil life than in the Army, and who had contracted disabilities which, if they had been discharged, would have rendered them eligible for consideration for a disability pension, or who were qualified by length of service to receive a pension. They were liable at any time to be recalled to the Colours (Army Order 355 of 1916).

Class T consisted of skilled tradesmen of certain specified trades whose services were deemed for the time being to be more valuable to the country in civil than in military employment. They were liable at any time to be recalled to the Colours (Army Order 355 of 1916).

Class W consisted of soldiers transferred to the Reserve whose services were deemed to be more valuable to the country in civil than in military employment. Such Reservists were liable at any time to be recalled to the Colours (Army Order 203 of 1916).

Class Z included all men released from service with the Colours on the expiration of their demobilization furlough, except men discharged as unfit for further service, men of the Army Reserve who had not completed their periods of engagement, etc. Soldiers in Class Z were liable at any time to be recalled to the Colours in case of urgent military necessity (Army Order 1 of 1919).

The Army Reserve was called out on 8th April, 1921, and demobilised on 2nd June, 1921.

GENERAL ANNUAL REPORT.

INTRODUCTORY NOTE.

The arrangement of this Report follows in general that of the Report for the year ending 30th September, 1922.

It should be noted that as regards the Regular Army the Regimental strength only is included. Consequently the figures in the tables affecting the Regular Army do not include men serving on the Staff, and in sundry miscellaneous Establishments such as Military Detention Barracks, Schools of Instruction, etc., nor do they include the Permanent Staff of the Territorial Army.

Indian Troops in the Middle East provided for by Army Estimates, but administered by the Air Ministry, are omitted from the tables.

Statistical tables for the Territorial Army are shown in Section II., Part XII.

By Command of the Army Council.

SECTION I.

ANNUAL REPORT ON RECRUITING FOR THE REGULAR ARMY FOR THE YEAR ENDING 30th SEPTEMBER, 1923.

1. Summary of Results.

The total number of enlistments and re-enlistments during the recruiting year from 1st October, 1922, to 30th September, 1923, was 31,386. The number of recruits obtained in each Military Command of the United Kingdom, and the yield of recruits for each 100,000 of the male population, are shown in the following table :—

	Eastern Command.	Northern Ireland District.	London Recruiting Zone.	Northern Command.	Scottish Command.	Southern Command.	Western Command.	Channel Islands.	Total.
Male Population (Census, 1921 ; or, in Ireland, 1911)	3,483,102	602,539	2,141,505	4,987,674	2,348,403	2,983,371	4,513,889	41,264	21,101,747
Recruits finally approved	5,774	1,023	4,741	6,952	2,783	5,354	4,605	57	31,289
Number of recruits approved for each 100,000 of male population	166	170	221	139	118	179	102	139	148

In addition, 97 recruits were raised at the Headquarters of various units at home and abroad.

In spite of certain factors which reacted adversely on recruiting, the total numbers obtained during the year under review are still in excess of the numbers obtained during the years prior to the war, but they are not altogether satisfactory. On the other hand, during a portion of the year considerable restrictions were deliberately kept in force.

2. Factors affecting recruiting..

(a) During the year under review, as a result of the report of the Committee on National Expenditure in India, presided over by Lord Inchcape, the establishment of rank and file for an infantry battalion in India was reduced by 119 men.

One effect of this reduction was that very few men were required for drafting to India during the trooping season 1923–24, and consequently fewer recruits were required. It was therefore necessary in March, 1923, to restrict severely recruiting for the Infantry of the Line in order to ensure that the reduced establishments were not exceeded.

(b) The Unemployment Benefit, whatever its advantages to National well-being in its broader aspects, must, from the nature of the case, considerably counteract the economic incentive to enlistment.

(c) Emigration to the Dominions, particularly from Scotland, has no doubt resulted in the loss to the Army of many young men who would otherwise have enlisted. Many of these men were in a position to obtain free passages, and this attraction, coupled with the desire for adventure, has been responsible for the loss of more than a few recruits.

(d) The publicity given by the press, especially in Scotland, to the possibility of reductions in Army pay created a feeling of insecurity and resulted in the loss of several recruits. It was not until a good deal of damage had been done that the Army Council were able to take steps with a view to removing this atmosphere of doubt and insecurity in the minds of prospective recruits.

3. Recruiting in Northern Ireland.—It is very satisfactory to be able to report that recruiting has benefited by the improvement in the political situation in Northern Ireland. This district has become a very productive recruiting market and the physique of the recruits accepted has reached a particularly high standard.

The Armagh Recruiting Zone, with headquarters at Armagh was reopened as a separate recruiting zone on 1st May, 1923.

4. Quality of recruits enlisted.—During the year under review it has been possible to maintain a higher standard in the medical examination of recruits applying for enlistment in the Army, with the result that the physique of the recruits accepted has been quite satisfactory. A further result has been that the number of recruits discharged from the Service subsequently during their recruit training as not likely to become efficient soldiers has been reduced.

5. Skilled Tradesmen.—Considerable difficulty is still being experienced in obtaining the number of skilled tradesmen required by the Army; this difficulty is especially great in the case of skilled men of the building trades.

Digitized by Google

With a view to overcoming these difficulties and with a view to making the Army as self-supporting in this respect as financial considerations will permit, the scheme for training boys as tradesmen has been developed considerably during the year. Towards the end of the year under review, a technical school for boys was established and provision has been made for the gradual expansion of this school so as to admit of 1,000 boys being trained technically there at one time. Boys for training at this school are accepted between the ages of 14 years and 15 years 8 months, and they all complete some three years training before they are appointed to one of the corps of the Army. No direct benefit will accrue to the Army as a result of this development until the autumn of 1926, but thereafter the Army will be receiving from its own source a steady flow of some 300 boys a year. In addition, large numbers of boys are receiving technical training in the various corps training establishments and workshops.

In order to qualify for enlistment in the Army for training in a trade, all boys are required to qualify at a competitive entrance examination; examinations are held three times a year. Only one of these examinations had been held prior to the close of the year under review, and the number of entrants did not come up to expectation, but this is attributed to the fact that the scheme is in its infancy, and that the public have not as yet fully appreciated its scope.

A difficulty which is being experienced in obtaining the number of boys required is the fact that the Army Council are unable to give parents any assurance that the training which their sons have received whilst in the Army will be recognized by the appropriate Trade Unions on discharge. Negotiations on this subject are still proceeding with the Trade Unions concerned.

Despite the steps which are being made to ease the skilled tradesmen situation by training boys, the requirements of the Army in this class of recruit are such that large calls on the skilled labour market are likely to be necessary for some time to come.

6. Army Reserve.—With a view to increasing the Army Reserve and so replacing a temporary deficiency in the number of reservists required in order to effect the mobilization of an Expeditionary Force if necessary, an additional 10,000 men who served in infantry regiments during the Great War have been enlisted into Section "D" of the Army Reserve during the year under review.

The response to the invitations to enlist which were conveyed to the public in the form of Press announcements was very satisfactory, no less than 94,000 applications for the 10,000 vacancies being received.

7. Re-organization of Depots of Infantry of the Line.—The scheme for the re-organization of Infantry Depots which entailed certain modifications in recruiting procedure and which was explained in the General Annual Report on the British Army for the year ending 30th September, 1922, was introduced in all Military Commands on 1st April, 1923.

(a) Native Troops borrowed from India. From 1913 to 1919 these figures refer to units specially provided by India for duty in China, Straits Settlements and Mauritius; from 1914 to 1919 they therefore exclude Indian troops employed with expeditionary forces; from 1920, however, inclusive, all Indian troops employed under the War Office are included.
(b) The figures for these years include the Territorial Army. Prisoners of War are included, except those of the Territorial Army for the years 1915, 1916 and 1917.
(c) The figures for 1919 and 1920 include that portion of the old Territorial Army not disembodied; those for 1920 do not include the new Territorial Army as reconstituted in February, 1920.
(d) In previous years the Military Mounted Police are included under "Cavalry," and the Military Foot Police under "Infantry."
(e) Prior to 1920 the Signal service was part of the Royal Engineers.

* The figures for these years include the embodied Territorial Army.

 The figures include the small portion of the old Territorial Army not disembodied.

(a) Including 1,064 discharges for misconduct.

‡ In 1912–13, 8,118 men were allowed to convert their colour to reserve service on special terms.

† Native Troops borrowed from India. From 1913 to 1919 these figures refer to units specially provided by India for duty in China, Straits Settlements and Mauritius; from 1914 to 1919 they therefore exclude Indian Troops employed with expeditionary forces; from 1920, however, inclusive, all Indian Troops employed under the War Office are included.

Previous to 1918 Warrant Officers were not included.

The Army Reserve was called out on 8th April, 1921, and demobilized on 2nd June, 1921.

‡ For the causes of discharge see pages 14, 15, 16 and 17

* Under Army Order 1 of January, 1918, all serving warrant officers, non-commissioned officers and men who had completed 22 years' service on or after 4th August, 1914, and who had been retained in the Army under the Military Service Acts, or who had voluntarily continued in the Service, were permitted to elect to draw, with retrospective effect, the pension to which they would have been entitled had they been discharged on completing 22 years' service. Similarly, soldiers who subsequent to the issue of the Army Order completed 22 years' service during the war, were permitted to elect to draw a Service Pension upon the completion of 22 years' Service. The election once made, the soldier was not entitled, in any circumstances, to have the Service Pension subsequently increased; but, if disabled, he became eligible for a disability pension in addition.

† In these cases, the soldiers were eligible, by length of service, for Service Pensions from the Commissioners, having received Disability Pensions from the Ministry of Pensions.

The present figures relate to all ranks serving in the Army (exclusive of officers).
Courts-Martial on Indian Native Troops and Civilians are not included.
The punishments are classified according to the method introduced in 1908; if, for example, a man is "imprisoned" and "fined" the punishment is entered under both headings.
In the case of a soldier convicted of more than one offence these are entered under their appropriate headings, thus showing the total number of soldiers convicted of each offence.
The remissions and suspensions of sentences are only shown when noted on the Proceedings.
* Also included in "Acquittals" shown in Table 1 (a)

*‡

* The figures for the period from 4th August, 1914, to 30th September, 1919, relate to the mobilized British Army (including the Territorial Army) and also to Overseas Dominion Troops, coloured labour, &c. (exclusive of Officers). For the period before 4th August, 1914, the figures relate only to Non-Commissioned Officers and men on the regimental strength of the Regular Army.

‡ Regimental Courts-Martial are not included, the figures not being available; very few Regimental Courts-Martial, however, were held during the war period.

§ Regimental Courts-Martial are included; Regimental Courts-Martial, however, were abolished in the Army (Annual) Act, 1920, which came into force in the United Kingdom, Channel Islands, and the Isle of Man from 30th April, 1920, and elsewhere from 31st July, 1920.

The remissions and suspensions of sentences are only shown when noted on the proceedings.

In the case of a soldier convicted of more than one offence, these are entered under their appropriate headings, thus showing the total number of soldiers convicted of each offence. The punishments are classified according to the method introduced in 1908; if, for example, a man is "imprisoned" and "fined," the punishment is entered under both headings.

‖ Also included in "Acquittals" shown in Table 2 (a).

NOTE AS TO THE VARIOUS SECTIONS

Section A consists of men who undertake a liability to be called out in stated circumstances without the general Reserve being mobilized; the undertaking is for the period required to complete one year from the date of their first transfer to the Reserve, and in certain circumstances for a further year. It was established by Royal Warrant of 8th October, 1898 (Army Order 142 of 1898), but after the war of 1914–1918 it was not revived.

Section B is the ordinary Reserve, and consists of men completing, in the Reserve, the term of their original engagement. It now includes Section C, in which men who had converted a period of Colour service into Reserve service used to serve until the time when their correct date of transfer to the Reserve arrived, when they passed into Section B.

Normally, Section D consists of men who, having completed the term of their original engagement (12 years), either with the Colours or in the Reserve, or having been discharged after 12 years' service, provided that not more than 15 years have elapsed since the date of first attestation (Army Order 212 of 1913), re-engage (or re-enlist) for a further period of four years in the Reserve. Men of certain trades are allowed to re-engage for further periods of four years in Section D, or, if they are within four years of attaining age 50, till the attainment of that age. To swell the Reserves, however, ex-soldiers were specially re-enlisted in Section D to the extent of 613 in 1920, 7,910 in 1921, 10,819 in 1922, and 13,995 in 1923.

OF THE ARMY RESERVE.

Class P consisted of men fit for service in a medical category not lower than C.III, whose services were deemed to be temporarily of greater value to the country in civil life than in the Army, and who had contracted disabilities which, if they had been discharged, would have rendered them eligible for consideration for a disability pension, or who were qualified by length of service to receive a pension. They were liable at any time to be recalled to the Colours (Army Order 355 of 1916).

Class T consisted of skilled tradesmen of certain specified trades whose services were deemed for the time being to be more valuable to the country in civil than in military employment. They were liable at any time to be recalled to the Colours (Army Order 355 of 1916).

Class W consisted of soldiers transferred to the Reserve whose services were deemed to be more valuable to the country in civil than in military employment. Such Reservists were liable at any time to be recalled to the Colours (Army Order 203 of 1916).

Class Z included all men released from service with the Colours on the expiration of their demobilization furlough, except men discharged as unfit for further service, men of the Army Reserve who had not completed their periods of engagement, etc. Soldiers in Class Z were liable at any time to be recalled to the Colours in case of urgent military necessity (Army Order 1 of 1919).

The Army Reserve was called out on 8th April, 1921, and demobilized on 2nd June, 1921.

For the year 1923 Colonial Corps are not included.

GENERAL ANNUAL REPORT.

INTRODUCTORY NOTE.

The arrangement of this Report follows in general that of the Report for the year ending 30th September, 1923.

It should be noted that, except in Section II, Part I, the tables refer only to Regimental strength. Consequently they do not include men serving on the Staff and in sundry miscellaneous Establishments, such as Military Detention Barracks, Schools of Instruction, etc., nor do they include the Permanent Staff of the Territorial Army.

Indian Troops in the Middle East provided for by Army Estimates, but administered by the Air Ministry, are omitted from the tables.

Statistical tables for the Territorial Army are shown in Section II, Part XI.

By Command of the Army Council.

SECTION I.

ANNUAL REPORT ON RECRUITING FOR THE REGULAR ARMY FOR THE YEAR ENDING 27th SEPTEMBER, 1924.

1. Summary of Results.

The total number of enlistments and re-enlistments during the recruiting year from 1st October, 1923, to 27th September, 1924, was 30,508. The number of recruits obtained in each Military Command of the United Kingdom, together with the proportion finally approved for each 100,000 of the male population, are shown in the following table :—

	Eastern Command.	Northern Ireland District.	London Recruiting Zone.	Northern Command.	Scottish Command.	Southern Command.	Western Command.	Channel Islands.	Total.
Male Population (Census, 1921; or, in Ireland, 1911)	3,483,102	602,539	2,141,505	4,987,674	2,348,403	2,983,371	4,513,889	41,264	21,101,747
Recruits finally approved	5,140	1,450	4,907	6,609	2,552	5,344	4,420	35	30,457
Number of recruits finally approved for each 100,000 of male population	147	241	229	132	109	179	98	80	144

In addition, 51 recruits were raised at the Headquarters of various units at home and abroad.

Recruiting during the year under review has not been subject to any considerable official restrictions, but although the numbers obtained still exceed those taken during the year immediately preceding the war, the annual intake is less by 878 than during the year ended 30th September, 1923.

It is however satisfactory to be able to report that Northern Ireland continues to be a most fruitful recruiting field, and that recruiting in London and Birmingham and in the counties of Hampshire and Devonshire has been maintained at a high standard.

2. Factors affecting recruiting.—(a) It has been pointed out in previous reports that the issue of unemployment benefit must tend to counteract the economic incentive to enlistment in the Regular Army, and during the year under review the difficulty in this respect has been enhanced as a result of recent modifications of the conditions governing the issue of benefit.

(b) It is a matter for regret that the civil population in some parts of the country, especially in industrial centres, appear to adopt an attitude of apathy towards the Army and military affairs.

(c) There also appears to be a disinclination on the part of parents to allow their sons to embark on a career which, they consider, holds out no assured prospect of employment in future life.

While the Council are doing everything possible, with the limited funds at their disposal, to ensure that as many soldiers as possible are fitted for return to civil life, they are unable alone to solve the problem, and they earnestly solicit the co-operation of other Government Departments, of the Trades Unions and of employers of labour in this country to assist them in fulfilling what is undoubtedly a debt of the nation.

(d) Emigration to the Dominions has in various localities again proved a serious counter-attraction to enlistment in the Army, and the reports of General Officers Commanding-in-Chief indicate that many recruits have been lost as a result.

3. Quality of recruits enlisted.—Although the quality of the recruits accepted has been maintained at a high standard, the physique of the youth of the nation has not yet recovered from the effects of war and post-war conditions. In consequence a proportion of lads on attaining military age are of such physique that they would be unable to stand the physical strain of military service.

The full effect on the recruiting market will be appreciated from the fact that during the year under review no fewer than 49,245 candidates for enlistment were rejected as unsuitable on account of physical and medical defects.

4.—Apprentice tradesmen.—The scheme, which was developed considerably in 1923, of enlisting boys and training them as tradesmen in various Army technical training establishments and workshops, is meeting with success, and it is very satisfactory to be able to report that it has been possible to maintain a high standard and attract a very good class of boy. When the scheme was first introduced the number of applicants was insufficient to meet all requirements, but during the year under review there has been a gradual increase in the number of candidates presenting themselves at the periodical examinations, with the result that it has not been possible to find vacancies for all those who qualified.

The popularity of the scheme in the counties of Hampshire and Devonshire has been most marked.

5. Supplementary Reserve.—With the object of completing on mobilization the requirements of certain arms and branches of the Regular Army for which the Army Reserve does not now provide, the Army Council during the year under review completed arrangements for an increase to the Army Reserve by the formation of a Supplementary Reserve.

This branch of the Reserve, which is technical in character, is composed of two categories.

One category consists of men who, although they will be employed at their own trades on mobilization, are required to perform a certain amount of training in peace in order that they may acquire a knowledge of military methods and equipments. This category is modelled on the lines of the Territorial Army, and is recruited and administered by Territorial Army Associations.

The other category consists of men who are not required to perform any training in peace in view of the fact that their employment on mobilization will be identical with their civil employment. This category is recruited by the Regular Army recruiting staff and is administered by officers i/c Records.

Men enlisting in both categories are liable to be called out when the Army Reserve, or any part of it, is called out by proclamation and to serve in any part of the world. They receive an annual bounty, the amount of which varies according to their trade.

Recruiting for this branch of the Army Reserve did not open until after the close of the year under review.

(a) These figures include troops of the Indian Army borrowed from India, except troops employed with expeditionary forces from 1914 to 1919.
(b) The figures for these years include the Territorial Army. Prisoners of War are included, except those of the Territorial Army for the years 1915, 1916 and 1917.
(c) The figures for 1919 and 1920 include that portion of the old Territorial Army not disembodied; those for 1920 do not include the new Territorial Army as reconstituted in February, 1920.
(d) In previous years the Military Mounted Police are included under "Cavalry," and the Military Foot Police under "Infantry."
(e) Prior to 1920 the Signal Service was part of the Royal Engineers.

‡ For the causes of discharge see pages 14 and 15.

* Under Army Order 1 of January, 1918, all serving warrant officers, non-commissioned officers and men who had completed 22 years' service on or after 4th August, 1914, and who had been retained in the Army under the Military Service Acts, or who had voluntarily continued in the Service, were permitted to elect to draw, with retrospective effect, the pension to which they would have been entitled had they been discharged on completing 22 years' service. Similarly, soldiers who subsequent to the issue of the Army Order completed 22 years' service during the war, were permitted to elect to draw a Service Pension upon the completion of 22 years' Service. The election once made, the soldier was not entitled, in any circumstances, to have the Service Pension subsequently increased; but, if disabled, he became eligible for a disability pension in addition.

† In these cases, the soldiers were eligible, by length of service, for Service Pensions from the Commissioners, having received Disability Pensions from the Ministry of Pensions.

The present figures relate to all ranks serving in the Army (exclusive of officers).
Courts-Martial on Indian Native Troops and Civilians are not included.
The punishments are classified according to the method introduced in 1908; if, for example, a man is "imprisoned" and "fined" the punishment is entered under both headings.
In the case of a soldier convicted of more than one offence these are entered under their appropriate headings, thus showing the total number of soldiers convicted of each offence.
The remissions and suspensions of sentences are only shown when noted on the Proceedings.
* Also included in "Acquittals" shown in Table 1 (a)

*‡

* The figures for the period from 4th August, 1914, to 30th September, 1919, relate to the mobilized British Army (including the Territorial Army) and also to Overseas Dominion Troops, coloured labour, &c. (exclusive of Officers). For the period before 4th August, 1914, the figures relate only to Non-Commissioned Officers and men on the regimental strength of the Regular Army.

‡ Regimental Courts-Martial are not included, the figures not being available; very few Regimental Courts-Martial, however, were held during the war period.

§ Regimental Courts-Martial are included; Regimental Courts-Martial, however, were abolished in the Army (Annual) Act, 1920, which came into force in the United Kingdom, Channel Islands, and the Isle of Man from 30th April, 1920, and elsewhere from 31st July, 1920.

The remissions and suspensions of sentences are only shown when noted on the proceedings.

In the case of a soldier convicted of more than one offence, these are entered under their appropriate headings, thus showing the total number of soldiers convicted of each offence. The punishments are classified according to the method introduced in 1908; if, for example, a man is "imprisoned" and "fined," the punishment is entered under both headings.

‖ Also included in "Acquittals" shown in Table 2 (a).

NOTE AS TO THE VARIOUS SECTIONS

Section A consists of men who undertake a liability to be called out in stated circumstances without the general Reserve being mobilized; the undertaking is for the period required to complete one year from the date of their first transfer to the Reserve, and in certain circumstances for a further year. It was established by Royal Warrant of 8th October, 1898 (Army Order 142 of 1898), but after the war of 1914–1918 it was not revived.

Section B is the ordinary Reserve, and consists of men completing, in the Reserve, the term of their original engagement. It now includes Section C, in which men who had converted a period of Colour service into Reserve service used to serve until the time when their correct date of transfer to the Reserve arrived, when they passed into Section B.

Normally, Section D consists of men who, having completed the term of their original engagement (12 years), either with the Colours or in the Reserve, or having been discharged after 12 years' service, provided that not more than 15 years have elapsed since the date of first attestation (Army Order 212 of 1913), re-engage (or re-enlist) for a further period of four years in the Reserve. Men of certain trades are allowed to re-engage for further periods of four years in Section D, or, if they are within four years of attaining age 50, till the attainment of that age. To swell the Reserves, however, ex-soldiers were specially re-enlisted in Section D to the extent of 613 in 1920, 7,910 in 1921, 10,819 in 1922, 13,995 in 1923, and 1,521 in 1924.

OF THE ARMY RESERVE.

Class P consisted of men fit for service in a medical category not lower than C.III, whose services were deemed to be temporarily of greater value to the country in civil life than in the Army, and who had contracted disabilities which, if they had been discharged, would have rendered them eligible for consideration for a disability pension, or who were qualified by length of service to receive a pension. They were liable at any time to be recalled to the Colours (Army Order 355 of 1916).

Class T consisted of skilled tradesmen of certain specified trades whose services were deemed for the time being to be more valuable to the country in civil than in military employment. They were liable at any time to be recalled to the Colours (Army Order 355 of 1916).

Class W consisted of soldiers transferred to the Reserve whose services were deemed to be more valuable to the country in civil than in military employment. Such Reservists were liable at any time to be recalled to the Colours (Army Order 203 of 1916).

Class Z included all men released from service with the Colours on the expiration of their demobilization furlough, except men discharged as unfit for further service, men of the Army Reserve who had not completed their periods of engagement, etc. Soldiers in Class Z were liable at any time to be recalled to the Colours in case of urgent military necessity (Army Order 1 of 1919).

The Army Reserve was called out on 8th April, 1921, and demobilized on 2nd June, 1921.

For the years 1923 and 1924 Colonial Corps are not included.

GENERAL ANNUAL REPORT.

INTRODUCTORY NOTE.

The Report this year includes tables for the Supplementary Reserve, recruiting for which commenced 15th October, 1924. Section A of the Army Reserve was also re-opened, for Infantry only, during the year, and particulars are shown in Section III. The opportunity has been taken to re-arrange the various Sections in order to facilitate reference.

It should be noted that, except in Section II, Part I, the tables refer only to Regimental strength. Consequently they do not include men serving on the Staff and in sundry miscellaneous Establishments, such as Military Detention Barracks, Schools of Instruction, etc., nor do they include the Permanent Staff of the Territorial Army, or Supplementary Reserve.

Indian Troops in the Middle East provided for by Army Estimates, but administered by the Air Ministry, are omitted from the tables.

Statistical tables for the Territorial Army are shown in Section V.

By Command of the Army Council,

H. J. Creedy

THE WAR OFFICE,

SECTION I.—PART I.

ANNUAL REPORT ON RECRUITING FOR THE REGULAR ARMY FOR THE YEAR ENDING 26TH SEPTEMBER, 1925.

1. General.—During the year under review recruiting showed a marked improvement over the previous year, and although it was necessary to restrict the numbers of enlistments for a short period owing to the fact that on 1st September the strength of the Army approached very near to the authorized establishment, the total number of recruits taken exceeded that of the year ending 30th September, 1924, by 1,497.

London and Northern Ireland continue to yield more recruits in proportion to population than any of the other Commands. In Northern Ireland the number of rejections on physical grounds has remained exceptionally low, while of the recruits enlisted in London no less than 40 per cent. were in employment.

2. Factors affecting Recruiting.—As in former years, recruiting was affected in varying degrees in different parts of the country by the state of the labour market. In the agricultural areas, where labour was reported to be scarce and wages were high in consequence, the enlistments were relatively fewer, while in the industrial areas the adoption of short time in preference to complete unemployment kept many men in civil life who otherwise would have found their way into the Army.

The relief works undertaken throughout the country have also absorbed many potential recruits.

Emigration is still a serious competitor, and although its results are most noticeable in Scotland and the Eastern Counties, its effects on recruiting have been felt generally throughout the country.

3. Quality of Recruits enlisted.—The standard in regard to character, general intelligence and physique compares favourably with the pre-war standard, and of the total numbers presenting themselves for enlistment only 36 per cent. were finally accepted.

Many rejections have been due to the high physical standard required, but this has resulted in a considerable reduction in the numbers of recruits discharged on medical grounds during their early training. At the same time it is apparent in all districts that the physique of those presenting themselves for enlistment is still comparatively low, and large numbers of rejections are due to lack of development. During the year a total of 52,207 candidates for enlistment were rejected as unsuitable on physical and medical grounds alone.

4. Allotment of Pay.—The system by which recruits are enabled to make allotments of pay to their parents and other dependants through the regimental paymaster has proved very popular. In many districts as many as 70 per cent. of the recruits presenting themselves have taken advantage of it.

5. Supplementary Reserve.—Recruiting for the Supplementary Reserve, which was opened in October, 1924, has been satisfactory on the whole, particularly for R.A.S.C. (Mechanical Transport) and R.E. (Transportation), though for certain other corps the results have been disappointing. The misapprehension as to the liabilities attaching to this branch of the Service had a detrimental effect in the initial stages, which has not yet entirely disappeared. In addition, the standard required is generally higher than that necessary for men in the corresponding trade in civil life, as a more technical and wider knowledge is required.

Recruiting for the Supplementary Reserve does not appear to have affected that for the Regular Army, possibly owing to the fact that it includes purely technical trades.

6. Apprentice Tradesmen.—The scheme for training boys as tradesmen, introduced in 1923, is still producing good results. Applicants are considerably in excess of the vacancies offered, but the number of successful candidates in the competitive examinations has latterly fallen slightly short of requirements. The first results of the scheme will become apparent next autumn, when the first batch of boys will have completed their training at the School and will be posted to their corps in the Regular Army. From then onwards an even flow of about 300 boys annually will be absorbed into the Army as tradesmen from this source.

7. Summary of Results.—A table showing by Commands the total number of enlistments and the proportion finally approved for each 100,000 of the male population is given below.

Summary of Results.

The total number of enlistments and re-enlistments during the recruiting year from 28th September, 1924, to 26th September, 1925, was 32,005. The number of recruits obtained in each Military Command of the United Kingdom, together with the proportion finally approved for each 100,000 of the male population, are shown in the following table :—

Military Command.	Male Population (Census, 1921; or, in Ireland, 1911).	Recruits finally approved.	Number of recruits finally approved for each 100,000 of male population.

(a) These figures include troops of the Indian Army borrowed from India, except troops employed with expeditionary forces from 1914 to 1919.
(b) The figures for these years include the Territorial Army. Prisoners of War are included, except those of the Territorial Army for the years 1915 1916 and 1917.
(c) The figures for 1919 and 1920 include that portion of the old Territorial Army not disembodied; those for 1920 do not include the new Territorial Army as reconstituted in February, 1920.
(d) In previous years the Military Mounted Police are included under "Cavalry," and the Military Foot Police under "Infantry."
(e) Prior to 1920 the Signal Service was part of the Royal Engineers.
(f) Includes British Officers and British other ranks.

§ The numbers do not include pensions granted to men serving in Miscellaneous Establishments (Military Provost Staff Corps, &c.); nor do they include pensions granted to Warrant Officers.

* Under Army Order 1 of January, 1918, all serving warrant officers, non-commissioned officers and men who had completed 22 years' service on or after 4th August, 1914, and who had been retained in the Army under the Military Service Acts, or who had voluntarily continued in the Service, were permitted to elect to draw, with retrospective effect, the pension to which they would have been entitled had they been discharged on completing 22 years' service. Similarly, soldiers who subsequent to the issue of the Army Order completed 22 years' service during the war, were permitted to elect to draw a Service Pension upon the completion of 22 years' Service. The election once made, the soldier was not entitled, in any circumstances, to have the Service Pension subsequently increased; but, if disabled, he became eligible for a disability pension in addition.

† In these cases, the soldiers were eligible, by length of service, for Service Pensions from the Commissioners, having received Disability Pensions from the Ministry of Pensions.

* The figures for the period from 4th August 1914, to 30th September, 1919, relate to the mobilized British Army (including the Territorial Army) and also to Overseas Dominion Troops, coloured labour, &c. (exclusive of Officers). For the period before 4th August, 1914, the figures relate only to Non-Commissioned Officers and men on the regimental strength of the Regular Army.

‡ Regimental Courts-Martial are not included, the figures not being available; very few Regimental Courts-Martial, however, were held during the war period.

§ Regimental Courts-Martial are included; Regimental Courts-Martial, however, were abolished in the Army (Annual) Act, 1920, which came into force in the United Kingdom, Channel Islands, and the Isle of Man from 30th April, 1920, and elsewhere from 31st July, 1920.

The remissions and suspensions of sentences are only shown when noted on the proceedings.

In the case of a soldier convicted of more than one offence, these are entered under their appropriate headings, thus showing the total number of soldiers convicted of each offence. The punishments are classified according to the method introduced in 1908; if, for example, a man is "imprisoned" and "fined," the punishment is entered under both headings.

‖ "Guilty but insane" are included in "Acquittals" and "Sentences."

NOTE AS TO THE VARIOUS SECTIONS

Section A consists of men who undertake a liability to be called out in stated circumstances without the general Reserve being mobilized; the undertaking is for the period required to complete one year from the date of their first transfer to the Reserve, and in certain circumstances for a further year. It was established by Royal Warrant of 8th October, 1898 (Army Order 142 of 1898), but after the war of 1914–1918 it was not revived until 1925.

Section B is the ordinary Reserve, and consists of men completing, in the Reserve, the term of their original engagement. It now includes Section C, in which men who had converted a period of Colour service into Reserve service used to serve until the time when their correct date of transfer to the Reserve arrived, when they passed into Section B.

Normally, Section D consists of men who, having completed the term of their original engagement (12 years), either with the Colours or in the Reserve, or having been discharged after 12 years' service, provided that not more than 15 years have elapsed since the date of first attestation (Army Order 212 of 1913), re-engage (or re-enlist) for a further period of four years in the Reserve. Men of certain trades are allowed to re-engage for further periods of four years in Section D, or, if they are within four years of attaining age 50, till the attainment of that age. To swell the Reserves, however, ex-soldiers were specially re-enlisted in Section D to the extent of 613 in 1920, 7,910 in 1921, 10,819 in 1922, 13,995 in 1923, 1,521 in 1924 and 2169 in 1925.

OF THE ARMY RESERVE.

Class P consisted of men fit for service in a medical category not lower than C.III, whose services were deemed to be temporarily of greater value to the country in civil life than in the Army, and who had contracted disabilities which, if they had been discharged, would have rendered them eligible for consideration for a disability pension, or who were qualified by length of service to receive a pension. They were liable at any time to be recalled to the Colours (Army Order 355 of 1916).

Class T consisted of skilled tradesmen of certain specified trades whose services were deemed for the time being to be more valuable to the country in civil than in military employment. They were liable at any time to be recalled to the Colours (Army Order 355 of 1916).

Class W consisted of soldiers transferred to the Reserve whose services were deemed to be more valuable to the country in civil than in military employment. Such Reservists were liable at any time to be recalled to the Colours (Army Order 203 of 1916).

Class Z included all men released from service with the Colours on the expiration of their demobilization furlough, except men discharged as unfit for further service, men of the Army Reserve who had not completed their periods of engagement, etc. Soldiers in Class Z were liable at any time to be recalled to the Colours in case of urgent military necessity (Army Order 1 of 1919).

The Army Reserve was called out on 8th April, 1921, and demobilized on 2nd June, 1921.

From 1923 onwards Colonial Corps are not included.

GENERAL ANNUAL REPORT.

INTRODUCTORY NOTE.

The arrangement of this Report follows in general that of the Report for the year ending 30th September, 1925.

It should be noted that, except in Table 1, Part II, the tables refer only to Regimental strength. Consequently they do not include men serving on the Staff and in sundry miscellaneous Establishments, such as Military Detention Barracks, Schools of Instruction, etc., nor do they include the Permanent Staff of the Territorial Army, or Supplementary Reserve.

Indian Troops in the Middle East provided for by Army Estimates, but administered by the Air Ministry, are omitted from the tables.

By Command of the Army Council,

H. J. Creedy

THE WAR OFFICE,
16*th February*, 1927.

PART I.

RECRUITING.

ANNUAL REPORT ON RECRUITING FOR THE REGULAR ARMY FOR THE YEAR ENDING 25TH SEPTEMBER, 1926.

1. General.—During the year under review the number of recruits finally approved for service was 28,987, as compared with 31,919 in the recruiting year 1924–25, a decrease of approximately 10 per cent.

The number of recruits raised for every 100,000 of the male population was 140, which compares with 155 for the previous year. The Northern and Western Commands, which include the principal industrial areas, practically maintained their last year's average, but the remainder of the country showed a decline. London and Northern Ireland, although well below last year's figures, were still the most productive in proportion to population.

2. Factors affecting Recruiting.—As in previous years, a variety of circumstances had an adverse effect on recruiting. The reduction of pay, which came into operation at the beginning of the year, was followed by a marked decrease in the intake during each of the succeeding three months, and, although the number of applicants steadily improved, the immediate effect of the reduction had not been completely overcome at the end of the recruiting year.

Emigration, stimulated by the introduction of a £3 passage to Canada, also had a noticeable effect in the country generally; but more particularly in Scotland, Northern Ireland, and the agricultural areas of England. At the same time the demand for farm labour was good and wages proportionately high, with the result that many of the young men who, in other circumstances, would have joined the Army, preferred to remain in civilian employment.

In the cities and the urban districts as a whole the task of the recruiting officers was particularly hard. During the period of the General Strike in May, the number of men approved for service fell 25 per cent. below normal; and the general industrial unrest and unsettlement arising directly and indirectly out of the coal stoppage had a continuing, though varying, effect. Many of the younger miners joined the Colours; but the majority of the men of military age and type held back.

Apart from the men affected by the industrial unsettlement, many potential recruits found employment in relief works and on provincial housing schemes. The fact, too, that men who are in an insured trade are entitled to unemployment insurance benefit when out of work also militated against recruiting.

3. Quality of Recruits enlisted.—The standard in general intelligence, character and physique was maintained throughout the year. Although the number of recruits presenting themselves for enlistment was 83,092, only 29,061, or 35 per cent., were accepted, as compared with 36 per cent. for the previous year.

Digitized by Google

The majority of rejections were on medical grounds due mainly to lack of development, the chief defects being underweight, under chest measurement and bad teeth. The number rejected solely on physical and medical grounds was 48,800, or 58 per cent.

The higher standard of training in the Army required by the complexity of modern weapons and equipment demands a high standard of both education and intelligence in the recruit. To meet the new conditions special tests designed to meet the particular needs of certain Corps have been introduced.

The comparatively small number of rejections resulting from the adoption of these tests indicates that the Army is attracting a good type of man. This combined with the maintenance of a high standard of character—no man being accepted without satisfactory references—reflects itself in the high moral tone of the Army as a whole.

4. Short Service enlistment.—In order to strengthen the Reserve by increasing the flow of men from the Colours, enlistment for 3 years with the Colours and 9 years with the Reserve for Infantry of the Line was opened in December, 1924. To ensure provision of sufficient numbers to meet drafting requirements enlistment on these terms was limited to 24 a battalion a year. By August, 1926, when 2,124 men had been enlisted for this period, drafting requirements necessitated suspension of these enlistments save in exceptional circumstances.

5. The Supplementary Reserve.—Recruiting for the Supplementary Reserve was suspended for reasons of economy on 9th August, 1926, when a total of 15,734 had been enlisted.

6. The Royal Artillery.—Up till 31st December, 1925, men were enlisted in the Royal Artillery either as Gunner or Driver. As the progressive mechanization of the Royal Artillery will gradually do away with the need for the horse driver, this rank was abolished on 1st January, 1926. All men for the Royal Artillery are now enlisted as Gunners to make them available for service with either horsed or tractor-drawn batteries.

7. Tradesmen.—The numbers of Tradesmen obtained has been much below the numbers required, but the entry of Boys for Training as Apprentice Tradesmen has been very satisfactory. The first complement of boys to finish their training at the Boys' Technical School, Chepstow, were posted to their various Corps in September. The number of candidates for training as Apprentice Tradesmen increased substantially during the year and the scheme is now well known and very popular.

8. Summary of Results.—A table showing by Commands the total number of enlistments and the proportion finally approved for each 100,000 of the male population is given below.

Summary of Results.

The total number of enlistments and re-enlistments during the recruiting year, from 27th September, 1925, to 25th September, 1926, was 29,061. The number of recruits obtained in each Military Command of the United Kingdom, together with the proportion finally approved for each 100,000 of the male population, are shown in the following table :—

§ The numbers do not include pensions granted to men serving in Miscellaneous Establishments (Military Provost Staff Corps, &c.); nor do they include pensions granted to Warrant Officers.

* Under Army Order 1 of January, 1918, all serving warrant officers, non-commissioned officers and men who had completed 22 years' service on or after 4th August, 1914, and who had been retained in the Army under the Military Service Acts, or who had voluntarily continued in the Service, were permitted to elect to draw, with retrospective effect, the pension to which they would have been entitled had they been discharged on completing 22 years' service. Similarly, soldiers who subsequent to the issue of the Army Order completed 22 years' service during the war, were permitted to elect to draw a Service Pension upon the completion of 22 years' Service. The election once made, the soldier was not entitled, in any circumstances, to have the Service Pension subsequently increased; but, if disabled, he became eligible for a disability pension in addition.

† In these cases, the soldiers were eligible, by length of service, for Service Pensions from the Commissioners, having received Disability Pensions from the Ministry of Pensions.

The present figures relate to all ranks serving in the Army (exclusive of officers).
Courts-Martial on Native Troops and Civilians are not included.
The punishments are classified according to the method introduced in 1908; if, for example, a man is "imprisoned" and "fined" the punishment is entered under both headings.
In the case of a soldier convicted of more than one offence these are entered under their appropriate headings, thus showing the total number of soldiers convicted of each offence.
The remissions and suspensions of sentences are only shown when noted on the Proceedings.
* Also included in "Acquittals" shown in Table 1 (a).

* The figures for the period from 4th August 1914, to 30th September, 1919, relate to the mobilized British Army (including the Territorial Army) and also to Overseas Dominion Troops, coloured labour, &c. (exclusive of Officers). For the period before 4th August, 1914, the figures relate only to Non-Commissioned Officers and men on the regimental strength of the Regular Army.

‡ Regimental Courts-Martial are not included, the figures not being available; very few Regimental Courts-Martial, however, were held during the war period.

§ Regimental Courts-Martial are included; Regimental Courts-Martial, however, were abolished in the Army (Annual) Act, 1920, which came into force in the United Kingdom, Channel Islands, and the Isle of Man from 30th April, 1920, and elsewhere from 31st July, 1920.

The remissions and suspensions of sentences are only shown when noted on the proceedings.

In the case of a soldier convicted of more than one offence, these are entered under their appropriate headings, thus showing the total number of soldiers convicted of each offence. The punishments are classified according to the method introduced in 1908; if, for example, a man is "imprisoned" and "fined," the punishment is entered under both headings.

‖ "Guilty but insane" are included in "Acquittals" and "Sentences."

 Included under "Miscellaneous Military Offences."

NOTE AS TO THE VARIOUS SECTIONS

Section A consists of men who undertake a liability to be called out in stated circumstances without the general Reserve being mobilized; the undertaking is for the period required to complete one year from the date of their first transfer to the Reserve, and in certain circumstances for a further year. It was established by Royal Warrant of 8th October, 1898 (Army Order 142 of 1898), but after the war of 1914–1918 it was not revived until 1925.

Section B is the ordinary Reserve, and consists of men completing, in the Reserve, the term of their original engagement. It now includes Section C, in which men who had converted a period of Colour service into Reserve service used to serve until the time when their correct date of transfer to the Reserve arrived, when they passed into Section B.

Normally, Section D consists of men who, having completed the term of their original engagement (12 years), either with the Colours or in the Reserve, or having been discharged after 12 years' service, provided that not more than 15 years have elapsed since the date of first attestation (Army Order 212 of 1913), re-engage (or re-enlist) for a further period of four years in the Reserve. Men of certain trades are allowed to re-engage for further periods of four years in Section D, or, if they are within four years of attaining age 50, till the attainment of that age. To swell the Reserves, however, ex-soldiers were specially re-enlisted in Section D to the extent of 613 in 1920, 7,910 in 1921, 10,819 in 1922, 13,995 in 1923, 1,521 in 1924, 2169 in 1925, and 901 in 1926.

OF THE ARMY RESERVE.

Class P consisted of men fit for service in a medical category not lower than C.III, whose services were deemed to be temporarily of greater value to the country in civil life than in the Army, and who had contracted disabilities which, if they had been discharged, would have rendered them eligible for consideration for a disability pension, or who were qualified by length of service to receive a pension. They were liable at any time to be recalled to the Colours (Army Order 355 of 1916).

Class T consisted of skilled tradesmen of certain specified trades whose services were deemed for the time being to be more valuable to the country in civil than in military employment. They were liable at any time to be recalled to the Colours (Army Order 355 of 1916).

Class W consisted of soldiers transferred to the Reserve whose services were deemed to be more valuable to the country in civil than in military employment. Such Reservists were liable at any time to be recalled to the Colours (Army Order 203 of 1916).

Class Z included all men released from service with the Colours on the expiration of their demobilization furlough, except men discharged as unfit for further service, men of the Army Reserve who had not completed their periods of engagement, etc. Soldiers in Class Z were liable at any time to be recalled to the Colours in case of urgent military necessity (Army Order 1 of 1919).

The Army Reserve was called out on 8th April, 1921, and demobilized on 2nd June, 1921.

From 1923 onwards Colonial Corps are not included.

HISTORY OF THE GREAT WAR BASED ON OFFICIAL DOCUMENTS

Military Operations
EGYPT
PALESTINE

By
Lieut.-General SIR GEORGE MACMUNN, K.C.B., K.C.S.I., D.S.O.,
and
Capt. CYRIL FALLS.

Egypt early became of vital military importance if only from the necessity of defending the Suez Canal and the route to India. The history of the operations in this theatre possesses a very great interest, not only to those who took part in the events narrated, but also to all students of military history at home and overseas. The first volume has now been published as part of the Official History of the Great War.

It covers a period of nearly three years from the outbreak of the war with Germany to June, 1917, when after deadlock had followed the Second Battle of Gaza, the War Cabinet decided upon the invasion of Palestine.

It thus includes an account not only of the preliminary defence of Egypt against invasion and the expulsion of the enemy from the Sinai Peninsula, but also of the First and Second Battles of Gaza.

The authors have depended chiefly on official records and documents, but they have supplemented this from external and non-official sources. Among the latter it is of interest to record the criticism which some chapters have received from the present Prime Minister of Iraq who commanded the troops of the Senussi against the British in 1915 and 1916.

The maps bound in the volume are sufficient to enable the general reader to follow the trend of events. For the benefit of special students a separate case of maps and plans is provided. The volume is fully illustrated with photographs, some of which are panoramic and give an excellent idea of the country encountered.

Vol. I. Price 12*s.* 6*d.* net. Postage 9*d.* extra.
Case of Maps „ 5*s.* 6*d.* „ „ 6*d.* „

"A masterpiece of careful research."—Daily Telegraph.

"The whole account is clear and simple. It is, moreover, fair. Justice is done to all, and no more than justice. . . . . In the whole there is much that is new, and many public misconceptions are corrected. Each passage is well balanced, and there are no hasty judgments. Once again the interests of military history have been well served."—The Times.

GENERAL ANNUAL REPORT.

INTRODUCTORY NOTE.

The arrangement of this Report follows in general that of the Report for the year ending 30th September, 1926.

It should be noted that, except in Table 1, Part II, the tables refer only to Regimental Strength. Consequently they do not include men serving on the Staff and in sundry miscellaneous Establishments, such as Military Detention Barracks, Schools of Instruction, etc., nor do they include the Permanent Staff of the Territorial Army, or the Supplementary Reserve.

Indian Troops in the Middle East provided for by Army Estimates, but administered by the Air Ministry, are omitted from the tables.

By Command of the Army Council,

H. J. Creedy

THE WAR OFFICE,
14th February, 1928.

PART I.

RECRUITING.

ANNUAL REPORT ON RECRUITING FOR THE REGULAR ARMY FOR THE YEAR ENDING 1st OCTOBER, 1927.

1. General.—During the year under review the number of recruits finally approved for service was 27,938, as compared with 29,061 in the recruiting year 1925–26, a decrease of approximately 4 per cent. 15,278 were raised from October to March and 12,660 from April to September, a decrease of 2,618 during the latter six months of the year.

The number of recruits raised for every 100,000 of the male population was 135 which compares with 140 for the previous year. The Southern and Western Commands and the Channel Islands maintained their last year's average. The remainder of the country showed a decline, particularly in the mining areas of the North of England. London and Northern Ireland were again the most productive in proportion to the population, but the former was considerably below last year's figure.

2. Factors Affecting Recruiting.—It is difficult to account for the pronounced falling off in the numbers during the second half of the year, but no doubt the conditions in the mining industry were partially responsible, as there was a notable decrease in the number of miners presenting themselves for enlistment.

The despatch of troops to China also appears to have had an adverse effect; but when the true role of this force was understood, the effect became less noticeable.

Emigration of youths of military age still militates severely against recruiting, more particularly in agricultural districts and in Northern Ireland.

More difficulty was experienced in obtaining recruits for Infantry of the Line and the Royal Corps of Signals than for other branches of the service. In the case of the former this was no doubt due to the fact that in the Infantry of the Line opportunities for learning trades which may ensure employment in civil life on discharge from the Colours are not so great as in technical Corps. The reason for the unpopularity of the Royal Corps of Signals is more difficult to explain. It is possible that too high an educational standard was expected, for since the suspension of the special educational test on 22nd September, 1927, the situation has materially improved.

Since 15th August, 1927, all recruits for the Cavalry have been enlisted for the Corps of Cavalry of the Line instead of for the Corps of Dragoons of the Line, the Corps of Lancers of the Line and the Corps of Hussars of the Line. This has had no adverse effect and no difficulty has been experienced in obtaining the required number of recruits for this branch of the service.

Two interesting experiments were carried out during the year by the Scottish Command. A recruit cadre platoon of the Royal Scots was sent into the open countryside to complete the last week of its training and in this way an opportunity was given to bring the local population and the Army into closer touch. The second experiment comprised a visit of parents to the depot of the Royal Scots Fusiliers to enable them to see the recruits at work and play. The expenses of the parents were paid by the military authorities. Both these experiments were most successful, and though it is too early to note any direct results from the latter, the former caused a marked increase of recruits for the regiment concerned.

3. Quality of Recruits.—The high standard in general intelligence, character and physique attained in recent years was fully maintained, but as an experimental measure the dental standard was slightly lowered for recruits enlisting in Scotland.

The number of rejections in the country as a whole continued to be high : of a total of 83,814 recruits presenting themselves for enlistment only 27,938, or 33 per cent., were accepted, as against 35 per cent. last year. 90 per cent. of the rejections were on physical and medical grounds, the main defects being lack of development and bad teeth, as was the case last year.

1,952 recruits became casualties after attestation ; of these 60 per cent. were rejected by approving officers for reasons other than physical. These were mostly recruits for technical Corps which require a high standard of education and, in certain cases, technical knowledge. In this connection it is of interest that the number of rejections due to failure to pass the Intelligence Test introduced for the Royal Artillery on 30th July, 1926, were few. This Intelligence Test superseded the former Educational Test and was designed to be a more searching examination. But the results would appear to show that more applicants for enlistment suffer from lack of education than from want of intelligence.

The desirability of substituting Intelligence Tests for Educational Tests in other Corps is accordingly under consideration.

4. The Supplementary Reserve.—Recruiting for the Supplementary Reserve was not re-opened except to the extent necessary to maintain the strength existing on 1st October, 1926. No difficulty was experienced in obtaining the very limited number of men required.

5. Tradesmen.—The number of tradesmen enlisted continued to be below requirements, but the entry of boys for training as apprentice tradesmen was increasingly satisfactory. The standard of candidates was high and the scheme continues to be very popular.

6. Summary of Results.—A table showing by Commands the total number of enlistments and the proportion finally approved for each 100,000 of the male population is given below.

Summary of Results,

The total number of enlistments and re-enlistments during the recruiting year from 26th September, 1926, to 1st October, 1927, was 27,938. The number of recruits obtained in each Military Command in Great Britain and Northern Ireland, together with the proportion finally approved for each 100,000 of the male population, are shown in the following table :—

Military Command.	Male population (Census, 1921; or, in Ireland, 1911).	Recruits finally approved.	Number of recruits finally approved for each 100,000 of male population.

(a) These figures include troops of the Indian Army borrowed from India, except troops employed with expeditionary forces from 1914 to 1919.
(b) The figures for these years include the Territorial Army. Prisoners of War are included, except those of the Territorial Army for the years 1915, 1916 and 1917.
(c) In previous years the Military Mounted Police are included under "Cavalry," and the Military Foot Police under "Infantry."
(d) The figures for 1919 and 1920 include that portion of the old Territorial Army not disembodied; those for 1920 do not include the new Territorial Army as reconstituted in February, 1920.
(e) Prior to 1920 the Signal Service was part of the Royal Engineers.
(f) Includes British Officers and British other ranks.
(g) Prior to 1926 the Royal Army Chaplains' Department was included in Miscellaneous and not in Regimental Establishments.

NOTE.—The numbers in Tables 5 and 6 do not include pensions granted to men serving in Miscellaneous Establishments (Military Provost Staff Corps, &c.); nor do they include pensions granted to Warrant Officers.

(a) Under Army Order 1 of January, 1918, all serving warrant officers, non-commissioned officers and men who had completed 22 years' service on or after 4th August, 1914, and who had been retained in the Army under the Military Service Acts, or who had voluntarily continued in the Service, were permitted to elect to draw, with retrospective effect, the pension to which they would have been entitled had they been discharged on completing 22 years' service. Similarly, soldiers who subsequent to the issue of the Army Order completed 22 years' service during the war, were permitted to elect to draw a Service Pension upon the completion of 22 years' Service. The election once made, the soldier was not entitled, in any circumstances, to have the Service Pension subsequently increased; but, if disabled, he became eligible for a disability pension in addition.

(b) In these cases, the soldiers were eligible, by length of service, for Service Pensions from the Commissioners, having received Disability Pensions from the Ministry of Pensions.

NOTES.—Courts-Martial on Native Troops and Civilians are not included.

The punishments are classified according to the method introduced in 1908; if, for example, a man is "imprisoned" and "fined" the punishment is entered under both headings.

In the case of a soldier convicted of more than one offence these are entered under their appropriate headings, thus showing the total number of soldiers convicted of each offence.

NOTE.—In the case of a soldier convicted of more than one offence, these are entered under their appropriate headings, thus showing the total number of soldiers convicted of each offence. The punishments are classified according to the method introduced in 1908; if, for example, a man is "imprisoned" and "fined," the punishment is entered under both headings.

(a) Regimental Courts-Martial are included; Regimental Courts-Martial were abolished in the Army (Annual) Act, 1920, which came into force in the United Kingdom, Channel Islands, and the Isle of Man from 30th April, 1920, and elsewhere from 31st July, 1920. Very few Regimental Courts-Martial were held during the war period; these have not been included as the figures are not available.

(b) The figures for the period from 4th August 1914, to 30th September, 1919, relate to the mobilized British Army (including the Territorial Army) and also to Overseas Dominion Troops, coloured labour, &c. (exclusive of Officers). For the period before 4th August, 1914, the figures relate only to Non-Commissioned Officers and men on the regimental strength of the Regular Army.

(c) Includes "Guilty but insane."

(d) The remissions and suspensions of sentences are only shown when noted on the proceedings.

(e) Included under "Miscellaneous Military Offences."

NOTE AS TO THE VARIOUS SECTIONS

Section A consists of men who undertake a liability to be called out in stated circumstances without the general Reserve being mobilized; the undertaking is for the period of one year in Section A, and in certain circumstances for a further period to complete two years from the date of transfer to the Reserve. It was established by Royal Warrant of 8th October, 1898 (Army Order 142 of 1898), but after the war of 1914–1918 it was not revived until 1925.

Section B is the ordinary Reserve, and consists of men completing, in the Reserve, the term of their original engagement. It now includes Section C, in which men who had converted a period of Colour service into Reserve service used to serve until the time when their correct date of transfer to the Reserve arrived, when they passed into Section B.

Normally, Section D consists of men who, having completed the term of their original engagement (12 years), either with the Colours or in the Reserve, or having been discharged after 12 years' service, provided that not more than 15 years have elapsed since the date of first attestation (Army Order 212 of 1913), re-engage (or re-enlist) for a further period of four years in the Reserve. Men of certain trades are allowed to re-engage for further periods of four years in Section D, or, if they are within four years of attaining age 50, till the attainment of that age. To swell the Reserves, however, ex-soldiers were specially re-enlisted in Section D to the extent of 613 in 1920, 7,910 in 1921, 10,819 in 1922, 13,995 in 1923, 1,521 in 1924, 2,169 in 1925, 901 in 1926 and 2 in 1927.

OF THE ARMY RESERVE.

Class P consisted of men fit for service in a medical category not lower than C.III, whose services were deemed to be temporarily of greater value to the country in civil life than in the Army, and who had contracted disabilities which, if they had been discharged, would have rendered them eligible for consideration for a disability pension, or who were qualified by length of service to receive a pension. They were liable at any time to be recalled to the Colours (Army Order 355 of 1916).

Class T consisted of skilled tradesmen of certain specified trades whose services were deemed for the time being to be more valuable to the country in civil than in military employment. They were liable at any time to be recalled to the Colours (Army Order 355 of 1916).

Class W consisted of soldiers transferred to the Reserve whose services were deemed to be more valuable to the country in civil than in military employment. Such Reservists were liable at any time to be recalled to the Colours (Army Order 203 of 1916).

Class Z included all men released from service with the Colours on the expiration of their demobilization furlough, except men discharged as unfit for further service, men of the Army Reserve who had not completed their periods of engagement, etc. Soldiers in Class Z were liable at any time to be recalled to the Colours in case of urgent military necessity (Army Order 1 of 1919).

The Army Reserve was called out on 8th April, 1921, and demobilized on 2nd June, 1921.

From 1923 onwards Colonial Corps are not included.

GENERAL ANNUAL REPORT.

INTRODUCTORY NOTE.

The arrangement of this Report follows in general that of the Report for the year ending 30th September, 1927.

It should be noted that, except in Table 1, Part II, the tables refer only to Regimental Strength. Consequently they do not include men serving on the Staff and in sundry miscellaneous Establishments, such as Military Detention Barracks, Schools of Instruction, etc., nor do they include the Permanent Staff of the Territorial Army, or the Supplementary Reserve.

Indian Troops in the Middle East provided for by Army Estimates, but administered by the Air Ministry, are omitted from the tables.

By Command of the Army Council.

H. J. Creedy

PART I.

RECRUITING.

ANNUAL REPORT ON RECRUITING FOR THE REGULAR ARMY FOR THE YEAR ENDING 30th SEPTEMBER, 1928.

1. General.—During the year under review the number of recruits finally approved for service was 30,185, as compared with 27,938 in the recruiting year 1926-27, an increase of 2,247 or approximately 8 per cent. 15,542 were raised from October to March and 14,643 from April to September, a decrease of 899 during the latter period of the year. The decrease in the summer months is usual.

The average number of recruits raised for the preceding five years was 30,180. This figure corresponds almost exactly with the intake for the year under review. The year may therefore be considered as showing a return to normal from the lean period of 1926-27.

The number of recruits raised for every 100,000 of the male population was 146, which compares favourably with 135 for the previous year. The most pronounced increases are in the Northern and Scottish Commands and in the Channel Islands. The London and Northern Ireland Districts show a decline.

2. Recruiting Organization.—The recruiting organization in England, Wales and Northern Ireland District was revised in April, 1928. Prior to that date the country had been divided, chiefly by counties, between a number of co-equal Recruiting Officers, each of whom was under the direct control of Command H.Q. By the reorganization, whilst still retaining territorial connection, Commands were divided into an appropriate number of Recruiting Zones each coinciding, as far as facility and economy of administration permit, with the area controlled by the Commander of the Territorial Division. These Zones were further divided into sub-zones. Normally a Chief Recruiting Officer is appointed to a zone and an Assistant Recruiting Officer to a sub-zone. Commanders of Depots and Territorial Adjutants have also been incorporated into the active machinery of recruiting as Station Recruiting Officers. The number of agencies has thus been increased whereas the cost of the system as a whole has been reduced. Although certain local adjustments may be necessary, it is generally agreed, as the result of six months experience, that an improvement has been effected. The re-organization has not been applied to Scotland.

3. Factors affecting Recruiting.—Emigration continues to affect recruiting adversely especially in various districts in Scotland, in Lancashire, and in Northern Ireland.

Digitized by Google

Recruiting for the Royal Engineers has been low. The trades for which this Corps is open to enlistment vary from time to time according to requirements, and it has so happened during the past year that comparatively few were open. The Corps was also closed to unskilled men during the whole year.

Considerable difficulty was again experienced in obtaining recruits for the Infantry of the Line. The intake was 15,710, an increase, however, of 441 on the preceding year.

4. Quality of Recruits.—Of a total of 82,938 recruits presenting themselves for enlistment 30,185 or 36 per cent were accepted, as against 33 per cent last year. Of the rejections 92 per cent were on physical and medical grounds.

2,071 recruits became casualties after attestation; of these 54 per cent were rejected by Approving Officers for reasons other than physical.

As a result of good food, exercise and fresh air, recruits develop both physically and mentally during their training at Depots. The average increase in weight during this period of five or six months is eight pounds; in one squad from a Northern District the average increase was no less than one stone.

An experiment was tried in Scotland of lowering slightly the dental standard in the case of candidates for enlistment whose physical condition was otherwise sufficiently above the minimum standard to give adequate compensation. As a result 434 well-developed young men were admitted who would otherwise have been rejected. The experiment is being extended to the remainder of Great Britain and Northern Ireland for the 1928-29 recruiting year.

With the co-operation of the National Institute of Industrial Psychology a new Intelligence Test has been introduced on trial. It is being used for all recruits for the Royal Artillery and for those for certain infantry regiments in different parts of the country from the North of Scotland to the South of England. The experiment has not yet been in operation sufficiently long to form a definite opinion on the value of the new form of test.

5.—Apprentice Tradesmen.—The entry of boys as apprentice tradesmen continues to be satisfactory, but the value of the various forms of training and the conditions under which they are taught merit a higher number of candidates. At recent examinations, held every four months, there have been approximately only two candidates for each vacancy. The great majority of candidates come from the South Coast of England. The response from the North of England and from Scotland is comparatively poor. The manifest advantages of these schools to the children of married serving soldiers, as well as to the public generally, are so great that they only require to be better known to be appreciated at their full value. Steps are being taken, therefore, to bring them more generally to the notice of all concerned.

6.—The Supplementary Reserve.—During the year 827 recruits were enlisted into the Supplementary Reserve.

Summary of Results.

The total number of enlistments and re-enlistments during the recruiting year ending 30th September 1928 was 30,185. The number of recruits obtained in each Military Command in Great Britain and Northern Ireland, together with the proportion finally approved for each 100,000 of the male population, is shown in the following table :—

Military Command.	Male population (Census, 1921; or, in Ireland, 1911).	Recruits finally approved.	Number of recruits finally approved for each 100,000 of male population.
Eastern Command	2,841,328	2,260	79·5

(a) These figures include troops of the Indian Army borrowed from India, except troops employed with expeditionary forces from 1914 to 1919.
(b) The figures for these years include the Territorial Army. Prisoners of War are included, except those of the Territorial Army for the years 1915, 1916 and 1917.
(c) In previous years the Military Mounted Police are included under "Cavalry," and the Military Foot Police under "Infantry."
(d) The figures for 1919 and 1920 include that portion of the old Territorial Army not disembodied; those for 1920 do not include the new Territorial Army as reconstituted in February, 1920.
(e) Prior to 1920 the Signal Service was part of the Royal Engineers.
(f) Includes British Officers and other ranks.
(g) Prior to 1920 the Royal Army Chaplains' Department was included in Miscellaneous and not in Regimental Establishments.

NOTE.—The numbers in Tables 5 and 6 do not include pensions granted to men serving in Miscellaneous Establishments (Military Provost Staff Corps, &c.); nor do they include pensions granted to Warrant Officers.

(a) Under Army Order 1 of January, 1918, all serving warrant officers, non-commissioned officers and men who had completed 22 years' service on or after 4th August, 1914, and who had been retained in the Army under the Military Service Acts, or who had voluntarily continued in the Service, were permitted to elect to draw, with retrospective effect, the pension to which they would have been entitled had they been discharged on completing 22 years' service. Similarly, soldiers who subsequent to the issue of the Army Order completed 22 years' service during the war, were permitted to elect to draw a Service Pension upon the completion of 22 years' Service. The election once made, the soldier was not entitled, in any circumstances, to have the Service Pension subsequently increased; but, if disabled, he became eligible for a Disability Pension in addition.

(b) In these cases, the soldiers were eligible, by length of service, for Service Pensions from the Commissioners, having received Disability Pensions from the Ministry of Pensions.

NOTES.—Courts-Martial on Native Troops and Civilians are not included.

The punishments are classified according to the method introduced in 1908; if, for example, a man is "imprisoned" and "fined" the punishment is entered under both headings.

In the case of a soldier convicted of more than one offence these are entered under their appropriate headings, thus showing the total number of soldiers convicted of each offence.

NOTE.—In the case of a soldier convicted of more than one offence, these are entered under their appropriate headings, thus showing the total number of soldiers convicted of each offence. The punishments are classified according to the method introduced in 1908; if, for example, a man is "imprisoned" and "fined," the punishment is entered under both headings.

(a) Regimental Courts-Martial are included; Regimental Courts-Martial were abolished by the Army (Annual) Act, 1920, which came into force in the United Kingdom, Channel Islands, and the Isle of Man from 30th April, 1920, and elsewhere from 31st July, 1920. Very few Regimental Courts-Martial were held during the war period; these have not been included as the figures are not available.

(b) The figures for the period from 4th August 1914, to 30th September, 1919, relate to the mobilized British Army (including the Territorial Army) and also to Overseas Dominion Troops, native labour, &c. (exclusive of Officers). For the period before 4th August, 1914, the figures relate only to Non-Commissioned Officers and men on the regimental strength of the Regular Army.

(c) Includes "Guilty but insane."

(d) The remissions and suspensions of sentences are only shown when noted on the proceedings.

(e) Included under "Miscellaneous Military Offences."

NOTES AS TO THE VARIOUS SECTIONS

Section A consists of men who undertake a liability to be called out in stated circumstances without the general Reserve being mobilized; the undertaking is for the period of one year in Section A, and in certain circumstances for a further period to complete two years from the date of transfer to the Reserve. It was established by Royal Warrant of 8th October, 1898 (Army Order 142 of 1898), but after the war of 1914–1918 it was not revived until 1925.

Section B is the ordinary Reserve, and consists of men completing, in the Reserve, the term of their original engagement. It now includes Section C, in which men who had converted a period of Colour service into Reserve service used to serve until the time when their correct date of transfer to the Reserve arrived, when they passed into Section B.

Normally, Section D consists of men who, having completed the term of their original engagement (12 years), either with the Colours or in the Reserve, or having been discharged after 12 years' service, provided that not more than 15 years have elapsed since the date of first attestation (Army Order 212 of 1913), re-engage (or re-enlist) for a further period of four years in the Reserve. Men of certain trades are allowed to re-engage for further periods of four years in Section D, or, if they are within four years of attaining 50, till the attainment of that age. To swell the Reserves, however, ex-soldiers were specially re-enlisted in Section D to the extent of 613 in 1920, 7,910 in 1921, 10,819 in 1922, 13,995 in 1923, 1,521 in 1924, 2,169 in 1925, 901 in 1926.

OF THE ARMY RESERVE.

Class P consisted of men fit for service in a medical category not lower than C.III, whose services were deemed to be temporarily of greater value to the country in civil life than in the Army, and who had contracted disabilities which, if they had been discharged, would have rendered them eligible for consideration for a disability pension, or who were qualified by length of service to receive a pension. They were liable at any time to be recalled to the Colours (Army Order 355 of 1916).

Class T consisted of skilled tradesmen of certain specified trades whose services were deemed for the time being to be more valuable to the country in civil than in military employment. They were liable at any time to be recalled to the Colours (Army Order 355 of 1916).

Class W consisted of soldiers transferred to the Reserve whose services were deemed to be more valuable to the country in civil than in military employment. Such Reservists were liable at any time to be recalled to the Colours (Army Order 203 of 1916).

Class Z included all men released from service with the Colours on the expiration of their demobilization furlough, except men discharged as unfit for further service, men of the Army Reserve who had not completed their periods of engagement, etc. Soldiers in Class Z were liable at any time to be recalled to the Colours in case of urgent military necessity (Army Order 1 of 1919).

The Army Reserve was called out on 8th April, 1921, and demobilized on 2nd June, 1921.

From 1923 onwards Colonial Corps are not included,

Re-engagements for Section D were suspended from 2nd February, 1928, for the Royal Corps of Signals, Foot Guards, Infantry of the Line and Royal Tank Corps.
